

Aerial Monitoring

Below are two examples of aerial monitoring on the same parcel, one photo taken in late May and the other in mid April.

With minimal ground cover and an open tree canopy, aerial monitoring can be very productive in late fall and early spring.

This picture is taken from a similar vantage point about 13 months later. Notice the heavy canopy throughout the forest. This dense leaf cover makes monitoring much more difficult.

